GERMANY PROTESTS SOVIET COURT RULING

the secret service of one foreign state.

Strickling, in a plea for clemency, said "I have not concealed anything... and I showed you led me down this road."

His reference presumably was to the German consul whom Strickling accused in the judges' chamber.

All defendants were convicted on four counts, two of which include a gas explosion in the great Kamerovo mines that killed 14 workers.

Prosecutor Roginsky, terming Strickling a "wrecking specialist," charged the German had been sent to Russia to direct sabotage of the Kamerovo mines, entrusted by Lenin to "Big Bill" Haywood and a group of American engineers in 1922.

They are the central mines in the Kuzbas region and are the second most important coal producers in the Soviet Union.

On hearing news of the sentence, the German embassy promptly protested to the foreign office, reported Strickling's guilt.

It asked that Strickling be allowed to get in touch immediately with the German consul at Novosibirsk where he is in prison. It is not known here whether the condemned man already has communicated with the consul.

The present trial was an indirect outgrowth of that held in Moscow last summer of 16 persons who were accused of plotting with Trotsky the assassination of Soviet leaders.

The sentence of Strickling comes at a time when 23 other foreigners, mostly Germans, are under arrest in Moscow, charged with spreading Fascist propaganda.

Observers today speculated on the possibility that if the sentence against Strickling is carried out, Germany might take some form of punitive action.

Short of war, Berlin could sever diplomatic relations or boycott all Russian goods.

GERMANY INDIGNANT OVER SENTENCE.
BERLIN, Nov. 22.—(UP)—The German embassy in Moscow lodged a formal protest against the death sentence imposed on E. I. Strickling, German engineer, by a Soviet court. No answer has yet been received.

The embassy, it was announced here, told the Soviet government that the charges against Strickling were "untrustworthy" and insisted, as a first step, that a pardon be assured him immediately.

German newspapers tonight were indignant over Strickling's sentence. Der Montag in an editorial captioned "Unprecedented International Scandal" charges Moscow with attempting to "cause unrest over the entire European situation."

"The German ambassador in Moscow," the paper continued, "has behind him the whole German nation which cannot tolerate its citizens being victims of the worst kind of partial justice."

It added that Russia was trying to make others appear responsible for "the fiasco of its economic situation."

MADRID LOSES TANKS IN COUNTER ASSAULT

Rebels Admit Reds Stronger; Won't Risk Decisive Offensive.

CASA DE CAMPO, OUTSIDE MADRID, Nov. 22.—(AP)—Madrid troops lost two tanks in an unsuccessful counterattack against this insurgent stronghold, Fascist officers said today.

Madrid attackers sought to cut communications lines across the Manzanares into University City, Madrid suburb where Fascists have fought their fiercest battles.

Both tanks were disabled, the Fascists reported, by fire from three insurgent tanks and anti-tank guns. The Madrid counter-attack was well planned, the officers said, but apparently poor organization of the troops kept them from following through for definite gains.

Increasing strength of artillery fire from the Madrid lines was taken by some to be an indication of growing strength, with the possibility the siege for the capital might be prolonged.

Fascists admitted they did not at the moment care to risk a sudden dash through the University City suburb for fear their troops might be trapped.

Fires within Madrid, set off by anti-aircraft fire, still sent up a pall of smoke and from time to time new blazes could be seen. (During the past two weeks more than 40 blocks of capital buildings have been fired, Madrid dispatches related.)

Fascist troops maneuvered into new positions tonight for a fresh assault. The front was relatively quiet throughout the night, but a sort of Sunday calm broken only by occasional bursts of machine gun fire and the spasmodic boom of artillery.

Most of the firing seemed to be going on in the Paseo de Rosales avenue in the western part of Madrid which has become the key point in the Fascist drive to capture the city.

The Fascist leaders said their men had found the area heavily fortified with trenches and barricades. Government machine gun nests were everywhere, they said, some in windows and balconies of homes.

Other nearby streets were reported similarly fortified. Five barricades could be seen in the Calles De La Princesa.

General Francisco Franco, his subalterns said, may deem it advisable first to occupy all roads around Madrid before commencing the final attack cutting off the one or two avenues of escape still left open.

FOREIGN CAPITAL IN U.S. HITS $7,200,000,000

Foreign and Domestic Commerce indicated foreign investments in common stocks here now total around $2,200,000,000, with about $400,000,000 in preferred stocks and approximately $700,000,000 in bonds.

Bank balances and other short term funds accounted for about $1,400,000,000, and the remainder of the $7,200,000,000 total was distributed among real estate, trust funds and the like.

Not Official.
The estimates were not officially compiled, but department experts said they roughly reflected foreign holdings in this country. Later this week, the Treasury plans to issue a comprehensive summary of foreign capital movements into the United States since last January 1.

Administration concern over the continued inflow of funds has grown in part from the possibility that any sudden withdrawal probably would have a detrimental effect on prices and investments generally.

Of the total foreign holdings, about $4,800,000,000 are in stocks, bank balances and similar accounts, and, theoretically, could be withdrawn immediately.

Most administration officials feel that unsettled conditions abroad will prevent any sudden outflow in the near future. They are canvassing the situation, however, to determine whether control legislation is desirable, and, if so, how it could be drawn to protect domestic economy without an unsettling effect on international financial relations.

1,200-FOOT FALL FATAL TO GENEVA JOURNALIST
MONTREUX, Switzerland, Nov. 22.—(UP)—The body of John MacNaughton, a member of the United Press bureau in Geneva, was found by a searching party early today at the foot of a cliff near Monte De Caux.

MacNaughton was spending a weekend vacation at the resort and had gone on a mountain-climbing expedition. When he failed to return to his hotel Saturday night, a rescue party went out.

MacNaughton apparently had fallen about 1,200 feet. There were evidences that during the first 800 feet of his descent he made frantic efforts to clutch at the face of the cliff.

LIGHT FREEZE SLATED FOR CITY EARLY TODAY
Following a light freeze predicted for early this morning, the weatherman says the temperatures in Atlanta will climb today to approximately 60 degrees, eight degrees above yesterday's maximum.

Skies will be clear, the weatherman says, in announcing that all of Dixie will enjoy bright sunshine. Light snows were reported yesterday in western Pennsylvania and northern Missouri.

Yesterday's temperature range was between 36 and 32 degrees.

President Cheers Woman Lying on Face 208 Days
BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Nov. 22.—(AP)—A personal message from President Roosevelt brought tears of happiness to 23-year-old Marion Patterson, who has been lying face downward for the past 208 days because of a burned body.

Miss Patterson's face caught fire last April from an open gas stove. The President, on learning of her misfortune, had a secretary write:

"The President has just learned you are confined to the hospital, and that you have been such a brave patient. He asks me to send you his best wishes and to express the hope you will have a splendid recovery."

"I also want to assure you of the President's appreciation of the friendly interest you have expressed in his administration."

Miss Patterson had said she was sorry the accident would prevent casting her first presidential vote for Roosevelt. The hospital reported her condition slightly improved since a blood transfusion last Friday.

Critics of the new type cruiser hold that they will be no match for heavier armed foreign fighters.

But in the revival of cruiser building after a lapse of several years, the government has not altogether abandoned the bigger gunned cruisers. Three additions are being made to the 9,500-ton Minneapolis class, to be armed with nine eight-inch guns each.

The Bethlehem works in Massachusetts recently completed the Quincy and is now building the Vincennes while the Philadelphia yard has the Wichita under construction.

Six of the new so-called treaty cruisers are shaping up in the New York area. The Brooklyn will be more than 75 per cent completed when it goes down the ways November 30 and the Brooklyn navy yard also has the Honolulu 54 per cent completed and the Helena is just five per cent under way.

R. W. Philip, of Atlanta, Is Named To Join Cotton Mission to Japan

Textile Leaders Will Meet Far Eastern Manufacturers in Effort To Find Satisfactory Solution of Present Staple Import Difficulties.

Robert W. Philip, of Atlanta, editor of "Cotton" and a director of the W. R. C. Smith Publishing Company, has been selected to go to Japan as secretary of the commission of textile manufacturers who will meet Japanese cotton-textile interests in that country in January for direct discussion as a basis for solution of the Japanese cotton imports problem.

The group of American cotton manufacturers who will participate includes Dr. Claudius T. Murchison, president of the Cotton Textile Institute, of New York; Casson J. Callaway, chairman of Callaway Mills, LaGrange; Donald Comer, of Birmingham, president of the Arondale Mills in Alabama and president of the American Cotton Manufacturers' Association, southern cotton mill organization; Harry L. Bailey, president of Wellington Sears Company, New York; and Hervey Kent, treasurer of Exeter Manufacturing Company, Exeter, N. H.

Approved unofficially by both the American and Japanese governments, the mission hopes to achieve a mutual understanding by the United States and Japanese industries of their respective problems which can ultimately be translated into a practical, voluntary agreement by the Japanese to establish their cotton goods shipments to this country on reasonable bases of volume, price and distribution. It is an effort probably unprecedented in international trade relations.

Discussions between the two industries were first proposed by Dr.

TO NEANTY DIVISIONS DR. DANIEL L. MARSH SENT TO NORTH CHINA TO SPEAK AT EMORY

Nanking Government Prepares To Repel Invasion of Mongols.

KWEISUL, SUYUAN PROVINCE, China, Nov. 22.—(AP)—Chinese sources reported tonight the national government had ordered 10 divisions of infantry and 50 airplanes to repel North China invaders allegedly encouraged by Japanese.

Observers saw in the reports, not confirmed in other sources, the threat of widespread war in China against the invaders—Mongols, rearmament Chinese and Manchoukouans who Suyuan officials claim have the backing of Japan.

The troop detachments, the Chinese reports said, were ordered into Suyuan to subjugate the attackers believed to be from Chahar province on Suyuan's eastern border.

From Pailinmia came dispatches relating that Japanese planes were flying constantly over the northern Suyuan frontier. These dispatches, from Chinese sources, said Mongol troops in the face of Suyuan troops, were attacking the frontier. Reasons for the present Suyuan crisis run deep into Asiatic history, with the situation especially hectic since Japanese domination of Manchoukou in 1931.

According to Chinese and foreigner alike, the present trouble here resulted from continued preparation by Japanese military forces in a supposed effort to consolidate their interests in Inner Mongolia after the conquest of Jehol and northern Chahar province.

Boston University President Will Address Centennial Session.

Dr. Daniel L. Marsh, president of Boston University, Boston, Mass., will make the centennial address at Emory University during the one hundredth anniversary celebration, Robert C. Mizell, chairman of the centennial committee, announced yesterday.

Dr. Marsh, widely known as a writer and orator, will speak Saturday morning, December 12, as part of the academic ceremonies at which seven Emory alumni will be awarded honorary degrees. "The University of Tomorrow" will be his subject.

Hundreds of delegates from colleges and universities of the nation will hear him.

Dr. Marsh has written scores of articles on educational development, including the preface to "L'Index Generalis," an authoritative volume on educational institutions, published in Paris. The Boston University president holds nearly a dozen degrees earned and honorary. For many years before he became president of the Massachusetts institution he was general superintendent of the Methodist Episcopal Church Union in Pittsburgh.

His address will follow the theme of the Emory centennial, which is "Emory's Century Challenges the Future." In describing the "University of Tomorrow," Dr. Marsh will tell what challenge of Emory's century means to educational growth of the southeast.

Knotty Social Security Queries Answered by Constitution Bureau

In Washington, a government staff is working in double shifts assorting applications for approximately 200,000 workers eligible to participate in the benefit plans of the federal social security act.

The Constitution's Washington Information Bureau has access to all records and rulings of the federal pension fund, and is daily clearing up, for Constitution readers, promptly and without cost, problems which arise in connection with the new law.

If there is a point on which you are not clear, phone, write or bring your query to the Social Security Question and Answer Editor of The Atlanta Constitution. It will be sent by air mail to Washington, and the answer, using your initials as identity, will be published in The Constitution as soon as it is received.

Questions and Answers. Some of the questions which have been presented by Constitution readers, together with answers received from our Washington Bureau, are published below. Send your question in promptly, as this service is offered for only a limited time.

Q. Are employees of charitable and religious organizations subject to the provisions of the Social Security Act?

A. Section 210 of the act excludes from its provisions "service performed in the employ of a corporation, community chest, fund, or foundation, organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, literary, or educational purposes, or for the prevention of cruelty to children or animals. In addition, the railroad retirement act of 1935, in section 15, excludes from the provisions for old-age benefits wages of employees of railway, express, and sleeping-car companies subject to the Interstate Commerce Act, as well as wages of employees of certain subsidiaries engaged in a service connected with rail transportation.

Worker Qualifications. Q. What, in general, are the qualifications necessary for a worker to secure monthly old-age retirement benefits? J. G. L.

A. Every worker who has engaged in included employment after 1936 will be entitled to monthly old-age retirement benefits from the federal government after January 1, 1942.

(1) if he is at least 65 years of age, (2) if the total amount of his wages for employment after December 31, 1936, and before he reaches age 65, was not less than $2,000, (3) if such wages were for employment in at least five different calendar years after December 31, 1936, and before age 65; but a monthly benefit will be deducted for each month after 65 in which the individual is regularly employed in included employment.

Q. I will be 30 years old in 1937 and my wages amount to $2,000 per year. If I continue to work and receive the same wage until I am age 65, how much monthly old-age retirement will I get after 65? K. B. C.

A. Such a worker would earn a total of $70,000, and this amount would be the basis for computing his monthly old-age retirement benefits, which would be $60.42 per month.

SAFE MILK

Typhoid fever, which is being widely discussed, does not come from a cow giving milk, but from a person who is a typhoid carrier that handles milk, whether he be employed by the Pasteur League, plant, or raw milk producer.

In order to assure purity and protection for our customers, not only the employees of Brownlee and Lively, but their entire families from one year old and up are vaccinated against typhoid fever.

UNDULANT FEVER

Our cows are tested every 60 days by government authorities against Bangs disease, which causes undulant fever. We want our customers to know that they are properly protected when they drink our milk.

Our cows are also tested regularly for tuberculosis by a veterinarian.

Therefore, drink Brownlee and Lively's milk and feel satisfied that you are not only drinking the best, but the purest, safest and most wholesome milk sold in the city of Atlanta.

Scientist Ages Whisky 4 Years in Half Second

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—(AP)—A team of prominent American scientists and inventors demonstrated tonight how to drive a ten-penny nail with a light bulb and age whisky almost instantaneously.

Reporters and patent examiners were their guests at the National Academy of Sciences on the eve of a celebration of the 100th anniversary of the patent office.

Swinging an electric light bulb like a sledge hammer, Dr. J. D. Hostetter, of the Corning Glass Works, drove a ten-penny nail through a thick pine block.

Booming with the volume of set-off dynamite came a demonstration of inaudible sound waves—so powerful that in half a second they aged raw whisky the equivalent of four and a half years by ordinary processes.

Dr. R. W. Wood, John Hopkins University physicist, revealed how sound, imprisoned in a test tube can be made to rise to such intensity that it melts glass and metal.

HERNDON APPEAL RULING EXPECTED

Supreme Court May Today Decide Whether To Act in Case.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—(AP)—The supreme court is expected to say tomorrow whether it will pass on appeal by Angelo Herndon, Cincinnati negro Communist organizer, seeking to escape a sentence imposed under an anti-insurrection statute of Georgia enacted in reconstruction days.

This was one of 22 appeals the justices will grant or deny before adjourning for two weeks to write opinions in a score of cases, including five New Deal controversies.

Herndon appealed from a decision of the Georgia supreme court upholding the 1871 law and sustaining his conviction, under which he was given an 18-to-20-year chain gang sentence. He contended the statute violated his right of free speech and that there was no evidence that he had "advocated violence or other unlawful acts."

He appealed to the supreme court once before, but his petition was dismissed because of lack of jurisdiction. He was convicted in 1932 but had been at liberty under $7,000 bail provided by the International Labor Defense.

READ TO ADDRESS RAIL MAIL CLERKS

New York Congressman and J. F. Bennett To Speak Here Tonight.

Congressman James M. Read, of New York, chairman of the house postoffice committee, and J. F. Bennett, of Washington, national president of the Railway Mail Association, will address a meeting of the railway postal clerks at 7:30 o'clock tonight in the civic room of the Ansley hotel, it was announced last night by S. S. Griffin, president of the local organization.

Congressman and Mrs. Read and Bennett will arrive here this afternoon, en route north from the Tampa meeting of the American Federation of Labor.

President Bennett and Congressman Read will speak on pending postal legislation and will discuss the highlights of the labor convention, Griffin said.

All postal employees are invited to attend the meeting.

REV. GLISSON CLOSES THREE-YEAR MINISTRY

The Rev. Fred L. Glisson last night closed a three-year pastorate at Park Street Methodist church and on December 1 will assume the office of superintendent at the North Georgia conference, in Decatur.

Following services last night he was presented with a silver service by friends in the congregation and an automobile radio by the young people's department.

The church membership has increased by more than 800 members during his three-year ministry.

Auto Smashes Stretcher, Crash Survivor Is Killed

BAYONNE, N. J., Nov. 22.—(AP) Joseph Paurz, 44, was hurled 50 to 75 feet to his death early today when an automobile crashed into the stretcher on which he was being carried after another car had hit him. Four stretcher bearers were injured.

The car which plowed through the stretcher party stopped after crashing into an ambulance. Police seized the car driver and hurried him off as the crowd at the scene became menacing.

Booked as Peter Jackson, 26, Jersey City negro, he was convicted of drunken driving, sentenced to 90 days in jail and fined $500. He was also held in $5,000 on a charge of manslaughter.

Dr. Francis Boyle, Bayonne hospital ambulance surgeon who was tossed 20 feet, estimated that Paurz had been knocked 50 to 75 feet through the air when the car hit the stretcher.

TWO BURN TO DEATH IN MILITARY AIRPLANE

Reserve Ship Plummets Into Cornfield From 300-Foot Level.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 22.—(AP)—First Lieutenant H. E. Vos, about 32, and Private Ray O'Rea, of the 35th observation squadron, air corps reserve, died today when their biplane crashed today when an airplane piloted by Lieutenant Vos crashed into a cornfield near the squadron hangars.

Major Dudley Outcall, commanding the detachment, said he was certain both men were dead before the plane, plummeting from an altitude of 300 feet, took fire as it hit the ground.

Lieutenant Vos, a native of Grand Rapids, Mich., had just taken off from Lunken airport, when, according to Wendell Fleming, who viewed the crash from a civilian plane, the ship made a "90-degree vertical turn."

"The nose came up suddenly," said Fleming in a sworn statement, "then dived straight down and the ship completed the turn in a tight spiral . . . until it struck the ground."

"At the point of impact the ship appeared to be recovering and struck an angle of 65 degrees. The ship burst into flames at the moment of impact. Both wings sheared off."

Sergeant Robert H. Weber, another witness, said he was first to reach the scene.

MOTHER OF ATLANTAN PASSES NEAR CLINTON

Mrs. Catherine Stewart Chiles, 88, well-known resident of Jones county and mother of Mrs. F. D. Malum, 856 Boulevard, S. E., died at her home near Clinton, Ga., yesterday after a long illness.

She was the widow of John Randolph Chiles, a Confederate veteran, who died in 1922.

Surviving are another daughter, Mrs. Kate C. Hardeman, of Miami, Fla., and two sons, M. S. Chiles, of Macon, and J. R. Chiles, of Gray. Funeral arrangements were incomplete last night.

PROPER CLASSIFICATION

Saves FABRICS and prevents FADING

TESTS PROVE that the accurate and careful classification system employed by reliable laundries (such as those of Atlanta's Gold Shield Group) for different colors, types of fabric and types of article results in SAFER washing, CLEANER clothes, and CLEARER COLORS.

In the scientific HOME WASHING SURVEY conducted by the American Institute of Laundering it was found that reliable laundries (such as those of Atlanta's Gold Shield Group) divide clothes into 16 SEPARATE CLASSIFICATIONS, while the typical homes surveyed separated the washing into ONLY 2 to 4 different groupings.

RESULT: Clothes washed at home showed 12.4% GREATER LOSS IN WHITENESS—and in many instances home-washed clothes showed damage of fading, shrinking and color running.

Every Home Manager should have a copy of the report on this startling survey.

REPUBLICANS ELECTED IN FANNIN UNDER FIRE

Democratic Candidates Charge Irregularities in Election Held Nov. 3.

BLUE RIDGE, Ga., Nov. 22.—(AP)—Alleging that there were a number of illegal votes cast in the general election held in Fannin county November 3, contests were filed here yesterday in three offices, that of legislator, commissioner of roads and revenues and sheriff.

G. A. Curtis, who was declared the winner in the race for commissioner of roads and revenues, said today notice of contests had been served upon him and that contest notices had also been filed upon R. T. Hampton and J. L. Hawkins, who were declared winners for representative and sheriff, respectively.

Curtis was opposed in his race by M. C. King; Hampton's opponent was Glenn Allen and the opponent of Hawkins was C. B. Higdon. According to Curtis, his election is being contested by King, Hampton's by Allen and Hawkins by Higdon. Other principals in the contests could not be reached for statements.

Hampton, Higdon and Curtis are Republicans, while their opponents are Democrats.

According to Curtis, the contests allege several irregularities in the election, the principal ones being that a number of names on the voters' list were not signed properly and that some names were placed on the list after the expiration of the time for such filing, six months before the election.

The contests will be heard next Friday before Judge H. H. Hester, constable of Blue Ridge district, and records in the case will be filed by him with Judge J. H. Hawkins, of Marietta, one of the Blue Ridge circuit, superior court, who will render final decision in the cases.

The Democratic candidates were named in the September 9 primary, and both the names of the Democratic and Republican candidates were voted on in the election November 3, the Republican ticket being declared the winner.

PRESIDENT, PARTY TO FACE 'CHARGES'

Neptune's Accusation Will Be Read to Roosevelt Tuesday.

ABOARD U. S. S. CHESTER, EN ROUTE WITH PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, Nov. 22.—(AP)—Neptune's emissary "Davey Jones" tonight charged President Roosevelt with "gross incompetency in failing to carry Maine and Vermont."

The solemn charge will be read to the President Tuesday morning when the flotilla carrying him to the inter-American peace conference at Buenos Aires crosses the equator.

In the traditional ceremonies, facetious accusations are made against each person aboard who has never crossed the equator before and practical jokes are played on the "guilty" persons.

Chaplain James M. Hester, who conducted services aboard the Chester today, whimsically stressed the fact that the Neptune ceremonies were under the impetus of Democracy and "good neighbor policy" because all must participate.

The President attended services in the morning on the Indianapolis quarter-deck. Chaplain Charles V. Ellis preached.

The ships tonight were 200 miles off Dutch and French Guianas and steering a southeast course in a calm sea.

The temperature was sweltering but there was a brisk deck breeze. The vessels maintained a steady 25 knots.

MRS. HATTIE L. G. HEMP SUCCUMBS AT MARIETTA

MARIETTA, Ga., Nov. 22.—(AP)—Rites for Mrs. Hattie Louise Grover Hemp, 68, wife of a prominent Marietta draftsman, will be held here Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the First Presbyterian church with the Rev. J. H. Patton in charge.

Mrs. Hemp died Sunday afternoon at a private sanitarium after an extended illness. She is survived by two sons, Stanley, of Marietta, and Shirely, of Louisville, Ky.; three sisters, Mrs. E. R. Matthews, Mrs. E. J. Schweitzer, Miss Carrie Grover, all of Louisville; three brothers, Samuel, of Louisville; William, of Brooklyn, N. Y.; and Edward Grover, of Shelbyville, Ky. Burial is in Cave Hill cemetery, Louisville.

LAGRANGE RITES HELD FOR CHARLES COTTER

LAGRANGE, Ga., Nov. 22.—(AP)—Funeral services were held here today for Charles A. Cotter, 46, former resident of LaGrange, who died Thursday in Charlotte, N. C. He was a freelance newspaperman and magazine writer.

Surviving are his father, W. P. Cotter, New Orleans; a brother, Robert, of Kansas City, and a sister, Mrs. Charles Roberts, New Orleans.

AUTO KILLS BOY, 7, ON SAVANNAH STREET

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 22.—(AP)—The death of a seven-year-old boy today raised Chatham county's traffic death toll for 1936 to 34 dead, making the figure for the whole of 1935. The boy, William Williams, was killed when two cars ran up on the sidewalk and struck him down after colliding.

Wallace Will Be Guest At Georgia Bird Dinner

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 22.—(AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, Dr. Rexford G. Tugwell, W. W. Alexander, slated to succeed Tugwell as Resettlement Administrator, and other government officials, will be tendered a bird dinner at Moultrie, Ga., tomorrow night.

R. W. Hudgens, regional resettlement officer, said a friend of his would be host to the secretary and his party.

The government officials, on a tour of federal rural projects, will leave Birmingham tomorrow morning for south Alabama and south Georgia. They will inspect the Irwinville, Ga., resettlement project and visit Georgia Rural Rehabilitation families before going to Moultrie.

Attending the bird dinner, Hudgens said, will be the secretary, Tugwell; Alexander, Dr. A. G. Black, chief of the Federal Bureau of Agricultural Economics; Milo Perkins, assistant to the secretary; Dr. W. A. Hartman and J. H. Wood, assistant regional resettlement directors at Montgomery, and Hudgens.

Congress To Be Asked for Millions To Provide 'Little TVA' in Georgia

Clarks Hill Dam, 25 Miles Above Augusta on Savannah River, Is Expected To Cost in Neighborhood of $30,000,000.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 22.—(AP)—Congress will be asked in January to provide millions of dollars for creation of a "little TVA project" in Georgia.

The final cost of the Clarks Hill project 25 miles above Augusta hasn't been estimated, but United States army engineers have completed preliminary surveys of the work.

The engineers say the project will serve navigation, prevent floods and create electric power. The most frequently mentioned cost is $30,000,000.

The heart of the plan, similar to the Tennessee Valley Authority, is construction of a massive dam at Clark's Hill on the Savannah river.

Engineers here contend the structure will store up enough flood waters to smooth out navigation and assure Augusta shipping of at least a six-foot channel the year round. Then, too, it will protect Augusta and thousands of acres of nearby land from floods.

Carolina to Benefit. South Carolina will benefit almost as much as Georgia.

The dam will produce an abundant supply of power. This, engineers contend, will stimulate industrialization. It also will supply another of President Roosevelt's "yardsticks" for power rates.

The survey started in 1928. Earlier this year a commission went over the plans in detail, made their recommendations to congress.

Another army engineer project, which may serve as a complement to the little TVA, is nearing completion 13 miles below Augusta.

It is the new Savannah River Bluff dam. It will be finished in January or February. Its cost will be $1,250,000.

To Raise River Level. The dam will raise the river level to Augusta and improve navigation. It will furnish a six-foot channel except in times of low water. Once completed, with its locks and flood gates, the dam is expected to smooth the flow of water in the navigable Savannah river. It will alleviate flood perils in the lower river reaches.

Another major Augusta project awaiting congressional approval is the improvement and strengthening of the Savannah river levee.

The levee, originally built by the city of Augusta in 1912-14, has been improved recently by Works Progress Administration help. The more elaborate plan, however, is for rebuilding the levee for 14 miles along the Augusta waterfront from high land to high land.

Engineers' Plans Completed. Army engineers have completed plans. If the levee they recommend is built, it will withstand a flood 50 per cent greater than any ever recorded on the river.

Besides affording flood protection to the city, it will protect thousands of acres of farm land. The work has been approved but no appropriation has been voted.

Army engineers are supervising expenditures of $900,000 here deepening and widening the channel in Savannah harbor. Four dredges are working along the waterfront. The upper reaches of the waterway are being deepened to 26 feet. A turning basin is being built. Silt is being dug by the ton from the harbor.

The lower harbor is being dredged to 30 feet and widened materially. The army itself is doing the dredging in the lower harbor. Private companies are at work in the upper harbor.

Engineers said the ongoing dredge Culebra was en route from Panama to Brunswick to start work immediately on improving the waterways there.

BIDS TO BE OPENED FOR POWER LINES

Contracts To Be Let December 8 for Monroe Area Project.

MONROE, La., Nov. 22.—Sealed bids for the construction of a rural electric distribution system and furnishing meters will be let here at the offices of the Walton Electric Association in the county courthouse at 10 o'clock, December 8.

The project consists of approximately 86.31 miles of 6,900-volt single phase primary lines; 17.2 miles of 115-220 volt, two and three-wire secondary lines, to be located in Walton and Morgan counties.

Bids will be asked on 400 meters. T. R. Breedlove is president of the Walton Electric Association, and W. L. Barrett is secretary and treasurer.

The project is to be financed by a loan from the Rural Electrification Administration, in Washington, it is announced.

Approximately six geese of average size must be plucked to obtain one pound of feathers for pillows.

BEST HOLIDAY SEASON SINCE '29 IS PREDICTED

National Credit Executive Says Industries Working at Capacity.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—(AP)—The best holiday season since 1929 for business throughout the United States was predicted today by Henry H. Heilmann, executive manager of the National Association of Credit Men.

Heilmann, in his monthly review sent to 20,000 association members in manufacturing, wholesaling and banking firms, based his prediction "on the general current record of the reliable indices of business activity and progress."

"While business expects added costs from taxes and labor demands," he said, "the consuming body is faced with an increasing cost of living. But generally the outlook over the short range is decidedly favorable."

Heilmann said the automobile industry "is working at production peaks" with an indicated demand better than in 1935, the steel industry is operating around 75 per cent capacity, and electric power production, car loadings, bituminous coal and petroleum production, bank clearings, employment and pay rolls are all ahead of levels a year ago.

Among "conclusions of business interest" drawn from the recent election, Heilmann said, was the fact that the Republican party "is not dead" but needs reorganization and "may need a new title."

The "heated election campaign" and currency devaluation in gold bloc countries might have retarded progress, he said, but for "the rather unexpected but significant co-operation" arranged in the Anglo-Franco-American currency agreements.

ARKANSAS FACES TRIAL ON SLAVERY CHARGES

JONESBORO, Ark., Nov. 22.—(AP) Government prosecutors and defense attorneys sorted a mass of evidence today for the federal court trial tomorrow of City Marshal Paul D. Peacher, of Earle, Ark., on a charge of keeping slaves.

Peacher, indicted by the federal grand jury at Little Rock last September, was said by United States Attorney Fred Lewis to be a man of evidence.

The indictment, alleged Peacher, indicted under the post civil war anti-slavery statute adopted by congress in 1866, alleged Peacher falsely arrested a group of negroes and worked them on his east Arkansas farm during a cotton choppers' strike.

Hungarian Physician Is Confident Of Winning 9-Duel Marathon Today

BUDAPEST, Nov. 22.—(AP)—Dr. Franz Sarga was set tonight for his nine-duel marathon tomorrow but said he had resorted to subterfuge with his wife—telling her the duels had been called off to relieve her nervousness after a near-collapse last night.

"I am confident of my ability," the rotund doctor said.

Magda, his pretty blonde wife who had to give up goulash she is expecting a baby, was bright and cheerful today—praying, she said, that the child will be a girl, "lest a boy inherit his father's martial characteristics."

Confident, Sarga busied himself today with a study of duelling strategy and a final fencing workout.

"I am confident of my ability," he said, "although my opponents have practiced since March and have intensified their training. I, however, have been engaged with my 21 libel cases against Budapest newspapers and had little time to polish my fencing. (Sarga issued his challenges because of allegations the nine men spread rumors he married for money.)

"Even so, I am sure I can defeat them all. I do not, however, minimize their ability. They are excellent fencers—I'll have to use my brains faster than they and have a better scheme of action."

The possibility remained that the duels might be called off by police. Although officials sometimes tend to wink at duels which are illegal, observers here said the case has attracted so much attention at home and abroad that police hardly could plead ignorance of the intentions to fight.

Seconds formulated plans today for the first three encounters to begin at some fencing school after 9 p. m. tomorrow. The remaining six must be completed within 48 hours after the first.

Identity of the first opponent was kept secret today.

The ruse to deceive Magda had one disadvantage to the doctor today—he had to warn visitors to refrain from the subject in her presence.

The dashing Magda confessed she once wanted to go to Hollywood to act "because I have heard so much of the charming and beautiful girls there."

Her approaching motherhood has ended that ambition, she added.

First College Night Club in U. S. Is Opened by University of Iowa

IOWA CITY, Iowa, Nov. 22.—(AP) The University of Iowa mixed soft lights and sweet music, dancing and liquor—and opened the university-operated club last night. Sponsors said it was the first club of its kind in the United States.

A capacity crowd was there—110 couples of formally attired collegians packed elbow to elbow at tables around a dance floor.

They danced. They ate. They cheered the floor show. They called back and forth and talked all at once in the customary night club clamor.

But they drank only soft drinks from their ice-filling glasses—no highballs, no cocktails or beer, for liquor is taboo in what university officials prefer to call the "Silver Shadow."

A night club, however, was what Editor Jess Gorkin, of the Daily Iowa, university newspaper, campaigned for in his editorial column.

PAN AMERICAN LEAGUE IS OPPOSED BY BORAH

Roosevelt's Visit Should Foster Good Understanding, Solon Says.

SPOKANE, Wash., Nov. 22.—(AP)—Senator William E. Borah, Republican, Idaho, commenting on President Roosevelt's trip to the Inter-American peace conference at Buenos Aires, warned today against "any very close league with South American countries" which remain in theory League of Nations.

In an interview Borah expressed belief the conference would be a good western hemisphere influence, but that "the forces working toward war in Europe are too profound to be greatly affected by example."

"The President's visit to South America and the conference in Buenos Aires should have a very considerable effect in fostering good understanding on this continent," declared Senator Borah, who served eight years as chairman of the foreign relations committee.

"It is of the utmost importance that the western continent stay out of and away from European controversies. It has been hoped by some that this conference, by setting an example, might have a good effect on Europe."

"Well, it may be all right to hope so, but the forces working toward war in Europe are too profound to be greatly affected by example. Let us stay away from European controversies."

"As for myself, I would not favor any very close league with South American countries if they are going to participate in European affairs, as they may be called upon to do if they remain members of the League."

RIVERS AFFIDAVIT LISTS NO EXPENSE

Governor-Elect Reports He Received No Donations After Primary.

An affidavit released yesterday by Governor-elect E. D. Rivers revealed that during his general election campaign for the office of governor on the Democratic ticket he incurred no expenses, received no contributions and expended no money in the race. He was nominated in the September primary.

The sworn statement attested by Gertrude Lyles, notary public, and signed by the governor-elect, follows: "Personally appeared before the undersigned attesting officer E. D. Rivers, who under oath deposes and says that in the general election, held in the state of Georgia, under date of November 3, 1936, he was a candidate for the office of governor on the Democratic ticket, and elected as such, and that during said campaign he incurred no campaign expenses, received no campaign contributions, and expended no money in said campaign."

IDENTIFICATION SOUGHT.

SOUTH BOSTON, Va., Nov. 22.—(AP)—Hundreds of persons, many from other states, viewed today the body of a woman found near here Friday while officers continued their efforts to establish her identity. The woman, who had been dead about six weeks, was apparently beaten to death, officers said.

Thanksgiving
Dinner

...and then the peaceful feeling that comes from good digestion and smoking Camels!

OFF TO A GOOD START—with a dish of hot, spiced tomato soup—delicious in itself and an exciting prelude to the delights to come!

THE MAIN EVENT—The time-honored turkey of our forefathers—done to a crisp and golden brown—flanked by a mountain of ruby cranberry jelly—and filled with savory dressing! An appetizing array, isn't it? And you enjoy it even more when you smoke Camels. For Camels ease tension. Speed up the flow of digestive fluids. Increase alkalinity. Help digestion run smoothly.

DOUBLE PAUSE—First for the crisp refreshment of Waldorf Salad—then for the sheer pleasure of Camel's costlier tobaccos. This double pause clears the palate—sets the stage for dessert.

WHAT WILL YOU HAVE? Reading in a circle, there's a piping-hot Plum Pudding...luscious Pumpkin Pie...Mince Pie à la mode...and layer cake with inch-deep icing. Thanksgiving dinner just wouldn't be complete without one of the traditional desserts shown here to add their characteristic touch of holiday cheer.

A HAPPY ENDING—over coffee and after-dinner Camels.
Enjoy Camels between courses and after eating—and you can lean back in your chair feeling on top of the world.

FOOD EDITOR—Miss Dorothy Malone says: "I'm quite interested in good digestion. Smoking Camels with my meals and afterwards helps build up a sense of digestive well-being."

"THE BEST MEAL I ever ate would be a disappointment if I couldn't enjoy Camels," says William H. Ferguson, salesman. "They give me an extra sense of contentment—set me right!"

Good food and good tobacco go together naturally!

RIGHT down the line—from explorers living on "iron rations" to the millions of men and women who'll heartily enjoy a big Thanksgiving dinner—it is agreed that Camels set you right! Camels help to ease tension. And to increase the flow of digestive fluids—alkaline digestive fluids—so important to digestive well-being. You enjoy food and feel at ease after eating when you smoke Camels between courses and after meals.

Enjoy Camels all you wish—all through the day. Camels are so mild they don't get on your nerves or tire your taste.

$25,000,000 REPORTED RAISED OVER AMERICA

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—(AP)—Swiftly growing tiers of crisp checks written by contributors to co-ordinated private charity were shaping today into a substantial bulwark for the relief efforts of federal and local governments.

A cross-section of the nation's contribution to Community Chests and other organized private relief efforts showed today that in 78 cities more than $25,000,000 had been paid in to date on completed or current drives.

The same number of cities had fixed quotas totaling more than $54,000,000. Directors of the campaigns in those cities pressed final drives to boost the contributions to the quota level. While in a majority of the cities campaigning were still on, several communities had completed their drives for 1936 contributions.

At New York, Community Chest and Councils, Inc., headquarters said reports received up to today indicated that contributions had increased six per cent over last year.

Quotas Passed.

An informal poll showed that in a dozen of the cities, quotas already had been passed, with many others nearing their objectives.

The cross-section did not include charity contributions—presumably running into millions—from wealthy New York city. That metropolis is one of eight cities of more than 100,000 population having no central organization for private contributions to welfare.

Taking cognizance of reported wage and dividend increases, directors of some community campaigns lifted this year's quotas above the 1935 level. Chicago fixed its goal at $3,400,000 compared with $1,400,000; San Francisco set a $2,020,800 mark against its $2,000,000 quota for 1935 and Cleveland aimed at a $2,300,000 target this year compared with $3,110,000 mark it had last year.

Some Quotas Down.

In a few of the big cities, the trend was slightly down, reflecting estimated local needs. Minneapolis used a 1936 quota of $1,506,186 com-distinguished Baltimore merchant and legislator.

Bessie was born to her mother, the former Alice Montague of famous ancestry, at Blue Ridge Summit, Pa., a summer resort near the Maryland-Pennsylvania border, the famed Mason and Dixon line of early American history.

There was quite a colony of Baltimoreans there to get away from the heat of the city in that epochal year, 1896. Blue Ridge was not a fashionable place but circumspect folk with limited incomes found it a relief from the rigors of summer in town.

Dr. Leonard E. Neale, of Baltimore, was the family physician. But he was not in when Mrs. Warfield knew her baby was about to be born. So Dr. Lewis Allen, who was on the staff of the University of Maryland hospital at Baltimore, was summoned.

Dr. Allen called a nurse and together they drove in a buggy to the Warfield cottage at Blue Ridge Summit.

The Warfields wanted a boy. This was their first child—and their only one. They had hoped for a male to carry on the respected Warfield name.

Wallis was the name that Teackle Wallis Warfield, who was a clerk at the time, had chosen for his heir. So, though the child was a girl, he stuck by his choice. Wallis it was.

The name Bessie was selected in honor of Mrs. D. Buchanan Merryman, her mother's sister, who before her marriage was Bessie Montague.

Dr. Allen is living today at Winchester, Va. He is 62 now, having retired as professor of obstetrics at the University of Maryland. But he remembers Wallis as a baby.

"She had long hair and was pretty and exceptionally magnetic in her personality," he recalled recently. "Everywhere she attracted friends."

Her early characteristics thus were prophetic of the role she was to play in later life. For it is her charm, endearing even in infancy, that has bound her to England's king, while the world speculated whether Edward will make her his queen.

The Warfields did not tarry long at Blue Ridge Summit after the birth of their daughter. They went back to Baltimore, and it was there, when the child was 3, that her father died. Fate hewed a rough road for the pig-tailed girl to travel on her way to the most far-flung kingdom in the world.

In those trying days she was a Cinderella, indeed. And it was to be a Cinderella's life, for she was to be a Cinderella's wife, but in the end, along with her coach and four, and escorted her to the historic castles where kings have ruled and romped for centuries.

The widowed Mrs. Warfield had only a small income. She turned to the boarding house in Biddle street as a solution of her financial problem.

And there it was that the child Wallis—then known as Bessie—received her early training for curtsying at court, for enchanting his Majesty with witticisms and playing hostess to royalty at exclusive little affairs he held behind the guarded doors of such regal retreats as Fort Belvedere, King Edward's favorite hideaway.

The atmosphere of Biddle street is scarcely comparable to that of Buckingham palace. Yet Biddle street cannot be called a shabby part of Baltimore. It is not. It is not the best residential section by far, but in 1900, though the streets then were paved with cobblestones over which wagon wheels raised a clatter, it was better than today. The best families today are living in Roland Park, Guilford and more remote suburbs in Green Spring Valley, where the cream of Maryland society is to be found.

EDWARD'S POSITION AMUSES CAROL

VIENNA, Nov. 22.—(UP)—King Carol, of Rumania, snubbed by the British royal family because of his open friendship with red-headed Magda Lupescu, was reported tonight to be deriving a certain satisfaction from the white-hot publicity beating on the friendship of King Edward and Mrs. Wallis Simpson, of Baltimore.

Queen Mary, of England, called "in his place" because of his friendship for the glamorous compeer. Carol hasn't forgotten; he hasn't spoken to the English royal family since. But evidently he appreciates how Edward must feel for his own sons reputedly have warned Rumanian newspapers that Mrs. Simpson must not be mentioned in connection with the king.

The censorship, according to other sources, is less magnanimous than expedient. Carol, it is reported, does not wish to emphasize the friendship of his subjects any parallel between Edward-Wallis and Carol-Magda. There have been demonstrations in the past against the attractive Lupescu.

EDITH MAXWELL PLEA WILL BE HEARD TODAY

WISE, Va., Nov. 22.—(AP)—On the eve of a change of venue hearing, counsel for Edith Maxwell pleaded today that she had filed with the court affidavits of 40 Wise county residents who expressed belief that an impartial jury could not be obtained here to give her a second trial for the death of her father.

The defendant and her family have been living on a farm near Richmond since she was released under $50,000 bond pending the new trial granted by the state supreme court in September.

ANKARA, Turkey, Nov. 22.—(AP)—The Turkish government today ordered abolition of its quota import system January 1 in a tariff reform program regarded as favorable to United States interests.

Charming Portrait of 'America's Cinderella'

Here is a recent portrait of Mrs. Wallis Simpson, who as a child propheticly evinced the charm, the personal magnetism that has captivated the ruler of the world's largest empire. A series of articles which commence with this issue of The Constitution brings to light the details of this glamorous favorite's early life, her upbringing, her two unhappy marriages and her entrance into the charmed circle of King Edward VIII's friends. RIVAL TO FEDERATION THREATENED AT TAMPA tomorrow afternoon, with the report of the resolution committee on various resolutions, concerning Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization.

Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, and the chiefs of nine other unions formed this committee to promote the organization of all the workers in each big industry into one big union, in violation of the federation's traditional policy of organization by craft.

The council found Frey's insurrection charges justified, and suspended the ten unions September 5. Varied peace maneuvers since that date have been unsuccessful.

Other developments today.

Church, Labor Linked.

In a sermon at the First Baptist church, William Green, A. P. of L. president, said that religion and the labor movement were indivisibly linked—that "the essential precepts of religion run through the whole history of the labor movement's development."

Creation of a federal commission to fix maximum working hours for industrial labor was proposed by George M. Harrison, president of the railway clerks, at an outdoor religious meeting. Harrison said he felt the constitution need not be amended to legalize the commission's orders.

Thomas A. Rickett, president of the United Garment Workers, laid the responsibility for the federation's boycott of Amalgamated Clothing Workers' products to what he called a breach of agreement on the Amalgamated's part. When admitted to federation in 1933, Rickett said in a statement, the Amalgamated agreed to use his union's label. Now, he said, the Amalgamated, a rebel union, had announced it would use its own label in men's clothes.

Floggings Decried.

The Rev. James A. Myers, of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, also speaking at the outdoor meeting, urged the church to oppose "the whole philosophy and use of violence." As example he cited the Tampa floggings of last year, "proletarian revolution," and "the violence of Fascism such as we are witnessing today in Spain."

'The Big Broadcast' Opens Run at the Fox

One of the best bills seen in Atlanta in a long time is on view this week at the Fox theater, where "The Big Broadcast of 1937" opened yesterday for a five-day engagement.

The film features a cast of outstanding excellence, headed by Jack Benny, Burns and Allen, Shirley Ross, Bob Burns, Martha Raye, Benny Fields, Ray Milland, Frank Forest, Leopold Stokowski and a host of other radio stars.

The picture gets off to a good start, and maintains a swift pace throughout. There is plenty of music, and a brief sequence showing Stokowski leading his symphony orchestra, Benny Goodman and his band do the honors with modern tempos.

But it is comedy, both lines and situation, that the show proves most entertaining. Bob Burns' naive wanderings into various broadcasting studios, in a futile search for Maestro Stokowski, from whom he wants an audition with his famous bazooka, furnish some of the funniest scenes.

Grace Allen was never seen to better advantage; Benny pulls his lines with the same dry humor that made him one of the biggest stars on the air, and Miss Raye, in a class by herself, wins audiences with her clowning.

Shirley Ross is deserving of special note. Her looks, vivacity, singing and acting should win her a high place in movieland. She has what it takes.

In addition, there is a cartoon, newsreel and a sports short showing several champion chimpanzees, which is extremely funny and good entertainment.

'Sea Spoilers' Opens Week's Run at Capitol

Alaska, seal poaching and the coast guard!

These three words spell action in the feature film, "The Sea Spoilers," which opened yesterday for a week's run at the Capitol theater with the vaudeville presentation, "Paradise Scandals."

The plot of the picture deals with the heroic adventures of the United States coast guard amidst excellent settings and good action. One might call it just another picture in praise of the "unsung heroes of the sea" as they risk danger and possible death for love and duty.

But it is in reality more than just that. John Wayne, in the lead as commander of a coast guard cutter, and the girl, Nan Grey, prevent it from being "just that." The romantic scenes and the sea-faring scenes are blended together in a well-balanced, entertaining, action film, produced by Universal.

The stage show is perhaps the most varied program that has been presented in several weeks, with the Four Amuses and Betty Streen receiving round after round of applause. Grace Neal, southern songbird; Amos and Greiner, at the piano; Paige and Jewett, the Enloe Sisters, Olegario, yo yo artist, and the "Dancing Rockets," complete the stage bill in great style.

Capitol new presentation and an extra short, "We the People, and Social Security," an explanation of the new act, are also on the bill.

Y. W. C. A. Plans Many Activities During Thanksgiving Week

Thanksgiving week in the Y. W. C. A. will be celebrated with various Monday evening at the residence; Tuesday evening at the Y. W. C. A. club; a harvest dance Wednesday evening at the Rainbow Club and a holiday Thursday. Miss Pauline Heermance, secretary, announces that the Y. W. C. A. on Baker street is filled to capacity, but that many students will go home for the holiday period. Those remaining in town will enjoy a Thanksgiving dinner and Thursday will be entertained at tea in Miss Heermance's apartment. The residence presents an attractive exterior due to the newly painted woodwork and other repairs which have been made recently. Monday evening A. B. Bankson, of Emory University, will conduct a service and Friday evening Mrs. Richard Battle will review Maurice Hindus' latest book. The "Y" singers, directed by Robert Moll, will be guests of the Bell "Y" club Tuesday evening, presenting a program of special music. All business girls will conduct a service on Thanksgiving day, November 26, 1936, by the business girls' committee, of which Mrs. Bond Almond is chairman. The menu will include turkey, cranberry sauce, mince pie and all the fixings. Meeting Tuesday evening at 5 o'clock, the interclub council will elect a new chairman and discuss ways and means for sending a representative of the business girls' department to the Cause and Cure of War Conference to be held January 21 in Chicago. Friends of the Bell "Y" club are urged to call Miss Virginia Bowling, Vernon 2635 (after 7 p. m.) and make reservations for the benefit of the Y. W. C. A. on December 3, at the Ansley roof garden. Assisting Miss Bowling with arrangements are Mrs. Mary Duncan, prizes; Mrs. Lois Foster, refreshments. The gymnasium at 37 Auburn will be decorated in autumn leaves, pumpkins, corn stalks and red and gold colors for the Thanksgiving dance sponsored by the Rainbow Club Wednesday evening from 9 to 12 o'clock. With Miss Sibyl Reines and Mrs. Daisy Bateman serving as chairmen, many interesting features are planned. Others assisting are Mrs. Eula Harris, Mrs. Gertrude Lewis, Miss Billie Hayes, Miss Beniah Cooper and Miss Julia Gardner. Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Thompson will be chaperones. Miss Mildred Kelly, swimming instructor, invites girls from 7 to 16 years to the Saturday morning bargain dip from 11 to 12 o'clock. On the first Saturday in every month there is a swim play day with games, stunts and races in the pool. As the girls have the only indoor pool open exclusively for women in the winter, they will enjoy the year round, healthful exercise the year round. Girls from 7 to 12 years are invited to Miss Kelly's tap class held Wednesday afternoons at 3:30 and 5 o'clock and to a beginners' swimming class held at 10 o'clock on Saturday mornings.

PINCHOT DUBS RICH
POLITICAL FOE NO. 1
Says G. O. P. Must Rid Itself of Rule by Wealth; Landon Silent.

TOPEKA, Kas., Nov. 22.—(AP)—Former Governor Gifford Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, said after conferring with Governor Alf M. Landon today that the Republican party would have to rid itself of domination by "concentrated wealth" if it hoped to come back.

"The people of the United States have long known that concentrated wealth is Public Enemy No. 1," declared the Republican leader.

"The election that saw Landon defeated for the presidency has proved that it also is Political Liability No. 1."

Governor Landon, who spent several hours conferring with Pinchot and Richard Lloyd Jones, publisher of the Tulsa Tribune, took no part in the interview and did not comment on the discussion which preceded it.

"Governor Landon is the head of the Republican party and will be for four years," said Pinchot. "It is in a better position than any other in America to supply the new type of leadership needed by the party."

UNITED AIR ORDERS
68 LARGER ENGINES
CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—(AP)—W. A. Patterson, president of United Air Lines, said today that his company had purchased 68 engines of a larger size than any now in use on commercial land planes for its new fleet of 28 twin-engine transports with a view to reducing cost-of-transport schedules.

The order, Patterson said, was the largest one for engines of its size ever placed for commercial planes. They are Hovender, twin-row motors with a 1,000-horsepower rating and a maximum of 1,150 horsepower.

Contract Bridge

By ELY CULBERTSON
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

Herewith is presented another portion of Mr. Culbertson's latest work on contract, the "Gold Book of Bidding and Play," which is being reproduced in this column in daily installments.

SIGN-OFF (AFTER AN OPENING TWO NO TRUMP.)
With a six-card suit and a weak hand the proper treatment is to rebid the suit, even if partner's rebid is three no trump. Bidding the suit a second time acts as a sign-off, denying even so much as a queen in the suit. If the suit is a major, partner already will have been reached, because the rebid will have been at the level of four. If the suit is a minor, the rebid tells the opening bidder that game is not possible and that the bidding should be dropped at four of the minor.

Holding only a five-card minor suit headed by the queen or a six-card minor suit headed by the queen or better, partner should be allowed to play the hand at three no trump.

With a weak hand he should go on to game in any six-card major suit, or with a five-card major suit and unbalanced distribution. With balanced distribution he should rebid three no trump only if his major suit is headed by the queen or better.

TODAY'S HAND.
I am afraid that bidding standards have outstripped the average caliber of play. There has been an avalanche of hands recently brought to attention for the purpose of fixing blame between partners for having "reached too high a contract." In almost every instance the contract should have been fulfilled by merely reasonably good play!

The bidding:
North East South West
1 heart Pass 1 spade Pass
2 clubs Pass 3 spades Pass
4 no trump Pass 5 clubs Pass
5 no trump Pass 6 spades (final bid)

A club opening lead would have made the contract hopeless, but since it was the only lead that would, the hand hardly can be said to have been badly overbid. On the actual diamond jack opening, it should have been ducked, and it is difficult to see how declarer managed to go down two tricks.

The crux of the play is to retain rigid control of the trump and diamond suits and to avoid finessees. If the first part is fulfilled dummy's jack will win a discard for South's losing club.

The correct play at the second trick is dummy's nine of spades. If the king is ruffed with the ace, any other trump ace cashed, and the heart king used as entry for trump drawing.

If East plays low on the spade nine, declarer must overtake of course, and if he holds the trick, ruff his diamond queen with the spade ace. Then the safest plan is to lead the ace of hearts and a low heart to the king, thus guarding against the chance that East may have started with four trumps to the king, in which event if he also had started with a diamond heart (and were allowed to retain one) he could take his king on the second round of the suit and lock the play in the dummy by returning a heart.

The only difficulty about this hand is psychological. Players are not accustomed to playing a trump suit in the manner prescribed. But there is no reason why careful analysis should not be able to offset habit.

TODAY'S QUESTION.
Question: If declarer leads from his own hand and immediately plays a card from dummy without waiting for his left-hand opponent to play, may the right-hand opponent play before his partner without penalty?

Answer: Yes.

Contract Bridge

By ELY CULBERTSON
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

Herewith is presented another portion of Mr. Culbertson's latest work on contract, the "Gold Book of Bidding and Play," which is being reproduced in this column in daily installments.

SIGN-OFF (AFTER AN OPENING TWO NO TRUMP.)
With a six-card suit and a weak hand the proper treatment is to rebid the suit, even if partner's rebid is three no trump. Bidding the suit a second time acts as a sign-off, denying even so much as a queen in the suit. If the suit is a major, partner already will have been reached, because the rebid will have been at the level of four. If the suit is a minor, the rebid tells the opening bidder that game is not possible and that the bidding should be dropped at four of the minor.

Holding only a five-card minor suit headed by the queen or a six-card minor suit headed by the queen or better, partner should be allowed to play the hand at three no trump.

With a weak hand he should go on to game in any six-card major suit, or with a five-card major suit and unbalanced distribution. With balanced distribution he should rebid three no trump only if his major suit is headed by the queen or better.

YOUR FIGURE, SIR

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

KEEP FIT WITH EXERCISE.
Fifteen minutes of exercise a day, sir, will add years to your life and subtract inches from your waistline. Can you touch your fingers to your toes? Come on—all the way down! Whew! You can't quite make it? Well, persistence will lessen the distance and your waistline.

This is one popular bending-over exercise is not so scientific, but it is a test of suppleness and hamstrings. If you can't touch the floor, it is a sure sign you are rusty on exercise.

Most men who feel fairly well are inclined to neglect exercise. Not that they don't believe in exercise—but they never get around to it. You would find time for exercise, however, if you realized its value to health and efficiency. Overeating and lack of sufficient physical activity increase your weight and reduce your stock of energy. Exercise helps to offset the effects of bad habits, cold will do more to extend your prime than any other single measure.

In exercise you must follow the rules of exercise and the first rule is to see your doctor. Don't attempt a program of unusual activity without first consulting your doctor.

Regarding the time to exercise—early morning exercise helps the fat man burn adipose tissue, but is not recommended for the high-strung, nervous individual. That type is almost never overweight, and needs relaxing rather than stimulating exercises. You overweights can exercise at any time, just so long as you exercise regularly and get a good workout.

Ease into your exercise program by warming up gradually to avoid stiff muscles and stiff joints. Circulation of air is necessary, so open the windows tops and bottom but have the curtains closed to avoid a cold. After exercise avoid drinking water. Two copious drinks of water.

What kind of exercise is best? Certainly not the old breathing exercises, because oxygen is used on the demand of the muscles. Exercises to stimulate circulation and to strengthen the abdominal and waistline muscles are the ones most needed by the average man.

The side scissors is the favorite of many instructors in corrective gymnastics, and it is as good a general exercise as you can find.

Position: Lying on side, head cushioned on upturned arm, palm of other hand braced on floor in front of chest for support.

Movement: Swing the legs in a brisk, scissors-like motion, one leg braced and the other leg forward, then the opposite, in as wide an excursion as possible. Keep the toes pointed and the legs stretched. Perform 10 times. Rest. Change sides and swing the legs in the same manner.

Rest and repeat for 20 counts, alternating sides as before.

The following waistline-abdominal exercise should be performed slowly. Position: Standing on knees, arms upstretched above head, stretching to full extent.

Movement: Bending arms and torso forward, bring the head down to touch the knees. Perform 10 times. Rest and repeat for 20 counts, alternating sides as before.

NANCY PAGE
The Page Family Certainly Eats Food on Thanksgiving.

By FLORENCE LA GANKE.
Thanksgiving Day was one which Nancy always enjoyed. Either her family went home to mother's or the whole family—cousins, uncles, aunts and such acquaintances as flanked came to her house. She always said that this was one time when she was glad she had a large dining room. Holidays were no days in which to entertain in a dinette or in a combination living-dining room.

Peggy Alston Enjoys Many Thrills In New Orleans and Dallas, Texas

By Sally Forth.

BETTING on a horse race on a hunch and winning five dollars, meeting John Boles, the movie star, drinking coffee and eating doughnuts at 3 a. m. in New Orleans' famous French Market are just a few of the highlights of the recent visit of attractive Peggy Alston, who has returned from the Crescent City and Dallas, Texas. Peggy was the guest of Dixie Woolford, a former Atlantan, who resides in the Texas city.

Sally can truthfully say that "it's true what they say about Dixie" being one of the favorite belles in her new home. The youthful belles were on a continuous merry-go-round of good times. They "took in" the famous centennial in Dallas, where they met John Boles and saw Sally Rand. They attended the race at Arlington Downs and because no one would bet on "Norman D" Peggy chose this horse on a hunch and she was "in the money" at the finish.

Peggy did all her traveling by airplanes between Atlanta, New Orleans and Dallas and she says that being up above the world so high held all the thrills she imagined, but her biggest thrill was watching the wheels go round as the planes took off from the airport.

While in New Orleans she visited her relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Miner, and attended all the debut affairs honoring the nine debbies. She had a gay time with Eleanor Terhune, a former Atlantan, and with Hilda Brown, who attends Sophie Newcomb College. Peggy says she was on the spot for a while at the Georgia-Tulane game, although she had a date with a Tulane man, all of her cheering was for the Georgia Bulldogs. She admits that she is down to earth again and busy making up lost time in her art work. Early in February she leaves by plane again for New Orleans to visit Mr. and Mrs. Miner and attend the Mardi Gras festivities.

For Miss MacIntyre And Dr. Hughes

Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Brandon and Mr. and Mrs. John McCord, of Madison, entered at the home of party Sunday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Brandon, on West Paces Ferry road in honor of Miss Louise MacIntyre and Dr. Hughes, whose marriage will be an important event of this evening. The home was artistically decorated with a profusion of chrysanthemums and autumn foliage, from Mrs. Brandon's garden.

In the dining room the beautifully appointed table was overlaid with a lace cloth and held as centerpiece a handsome silver epergne filled with richly tinted fall flowers. Assisting in entertaining were Mrs. McCord and Mr. and Mrs. Morris Brandon. Guests included the members of the wedding party and the families of the bride and groom.

Beautification Project Of Peachtree Garden Club Is Commended

At the meeting of the board of directors of the Garden Club of Georgia held in Macon recently, Mrs. Walter King, of Cuthbert, chairman of parks and civic projects, commended the Peachtree Garden Club's beautification of Peachtree road, stating that in her estimation this civic undertaking deserved the highest rating of any similar work being done in Georgia. Mrs. Donald Hastings, president of the Garden Club of Georgia, commended the project on November 5 through the editorial department of the paper.

The Buckhead Fifty Club, composed of leading Buckhead citizens, J. Schley Thompson, president, are supporting the Peachtree Garden Club's work. The Fifty Club provides the service of a porter to sweep sidewalks and gutters daily and Sunday, which is of untold value to the cleanliness of Buckhead. This club was instrumental in relieving the congested traffic conditions in their busy center, by having switches on street car tracks moved to a point further out Peachtree road.

The first planting on the road, in connection with the club's beautification project is nearing completion. Shrubs were planted this week, under the direction of Mrs. Jackson Dick, planting chairman, assisted by Mrs. Jesse Draper. Plans for the design were executed by Miss Edith Harrison, landscape architect and director of the Garden Center.

Many Peachtree road property owners have accepted the county commission's offer of free labor for laying the concrete sidewalks, the property owner paying, at a small cost, for the necessary material. Five hundred and fifty feet of sidewalk on the west side of Peachtree road will be laid as soon as possible. W. H. Shippen, 2559 Peachtree road, N. E., will pave 150 feet and Mrs. E. E. Anthony, 2479 Peachtree road, 200.

Miss Lucille Brown Weds Mr. Carter

Beauty and dignity characterized the marriage on November 14 of Miss Lucille Turner Brown to Edmund Worrell Carter, of Thomaston, Ga., the ceremony taking place at noon at the Druid Hills Methodist church. Rev. John Brandon Peters officiated in the presence of the immediate families of the couple.

Miss Doris Brown was her sister's maid of honor and only attendant. She was modestly attired in an ensemble of deep burgundy colored velvet, combined with blending accessories. Her flowers were a corsage of talisman roses and valley lilies.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Luke Whitfield Brown, and were met at the altar by the bridegroom and his best man, William H. Hightower Jr., of Thomaston. A soft gray was chosen by the bride for her wedding costume, her suit of gray wool featuring lavish trim of Persian lamb. She wore matching accessories, and her flowers were a shoulder cluster of purple orchids.

After the ceremony the couple left by motor on their wedding trip to New York, Washington and Roanoke, Va. They will reside in Thomaston.

1204-B AN ALL-AROUND FROCK FOR THE CONSERVATIVE TASTE.

This simply designed, but very appealing, frock for the mature woman in size range 36 to 52 holds the spotlight today quite deservedly. It's a brand-new model featuring a collar of unusual cut and charm. The pointed ends cleverly slenderize while the soft jabot effect adds the proportion so necessary to the full figure. An extremely simple pattern with a slightly flared skirt ensures easy sewing. It is a frock that will last a long time in your wardrobe without danger of becoming outmoded.

To enhance the slenderizing effect pick a small print in satin matelasse, challis, or a plain-colored sheer wool with silk or shantung collar.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1204-B is available in a wide range of sizes: 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 38 requires 4-3/4 yards of 30-inch fabric, plus contrasting 3-4 yard.

Price of pattern 15 cents. Do not send stamps.

My Day By ELEANOR ROOSEVELT

CHICAGO, Friday.—In an office building yesterday I saw my first Red Cross workers, and it reminded me that the Christmas seal sale and membership drive are on. I always forget when time comes around because I have been a life member for many years, and it has been a custom in our village of Hyde Park to collect from everybody on election day. I always pay additional dues as part of my voting duty. It was not until the familiar uniform loomed before me that I thought of the meaning back of all this work. As the years roll by, we rarely think of how much the Red Cross does in every emergency that arises. I believe we have become so accustomed to the fact that the Red Cross is on hand that we take them as much for granted as though they had dropped from Heaven. We do not realize that if it were not for the co-operation of so many people, these devoted workers could not do the work which they do in flood. Fire and a thousand other contingencies.

If you are like I am, and have forgotten so far, be sure that you join the Red Cross and buy their Christmas seals.

After my lecture last night I was asked to receive a "selected few" backstage. But long experience has taught me that it never is a selected few, and the line passing in front of me to shake hands went on and on.

Finally two small boys, who had been selling magazines on the street came in. I looked at one on crutches with interest. He looked small for his age, and I doubt if he was much more than ten years old, but his spirit was all there, and as he came up to me he said: "Would you sign one of my magazines, lady?"

These small boys have a "never-say-die" spirit. One of them dogged my footsteps all day and by dint of sticking to it until my resistance was worn down, finally got my autograph before I left. There is plenty of persistence left in the young males of America.

We arrived at Chicago this morning at 7 o'clock, so I gained an hour and had a grand time feeling leisurely until we left at 10:20 to drive out to River Forest for my lecture at Rosary College to a big group of Catholic young people organizing for peace. All one could do was to hope that their efforts would be successful.

In this world where force is still rampant, one holds one's breath when one looks into the faces of young people. If only they can succeed where we of the older generation have failed. (Copyright, 1936, by The Constitution.)

Camp Fire Girls Harvest Council Fire Takes Place Tuesday Afternoon

Harvest Council Fire of the Camp Fire Girls will be given with motions. Members of Hitawasi and Hiweto will sing "Walking Song." Bluebirds from Winona Park school in Decatur will sing "Booga Man" and Okida group from E. Rivers school, will give the "Work Song." The seven crafts will be explained by Margaret Mizell, Sara Smith, Mary Neal Owen, Rosalyn Leon, Edna Screen, Hortense Pioxotto and Betty Jane Williams.

The program will close with the torchbearers giving their lanterns to the new girls to carry on, and with the "Recessional," sung by all girls. Committees in charge of council fires are: arrangements, Mesdames A. E. Wilson, E. L. Bishop, R. P. Seitzinger, Frank Cantrell and Misses Eva Poliakoff and Mary Green; professional: Mrs. D. W. Stewart; music, Mesdames W. Harry Vaughan and Leroy Martin; Needlework Guild, Mrs. J. W. Long, and rank, Mrs. Henry Stakely.

For Bridal Couple.

Mrs. Floyd McRae was hostess Saturday evening at a buffet supper at her home on Peachtree road, complimenting Miss Louise MacIntyre and Dr. Julius Hughes, whose marriage takes place Monday evening at the First Presbyterian church. Flowers in shades of pink beautified the house and in the dining room the table was covered with an exquisite Venice cloth. A silver epergne holding pink roses formed the graceful centerpiece.

Miss Carene Paden, president of Girls' Council, will welcome the new girls into the camp fire circle and new members will be officially recognized. Neidlinger songs, written for

ROSE OF SOLEDAD

By GEORGE E. HOLT.

INSTALLMENT XXIII.

"Well, I tell you, meester," continued Jose, "Vibora he come, he go, all time La Espanola. He—what you say—business man of Don Fernando Miller. Don Fernando he have ranchos—two—tree ranchos in Baja California, south of Tijuana. Reech man, Don Fernando. Mebbe so. So dees Vibora de Casabel, he all time come to La Espanola, stay mebbe one day, two, go back to Mexico. Business man, what you say, do heesness for Don Fernando?"

"Well," said Shane, "that's not uncommon. If I had a ranch in Mexico, probably I'd have somebody coming up to report."

"Sure, meester, dat w'at I say," agreed Jose. "I jus' tell you. Dat mean t'ossing. But w'at I hear one feller say in San Felix, dat mean somethin'."

"What did you hear, Jose?"

"I tell you, meester. I go to San Felix, Late. I go little place, w'at you call him, speckiey, yes. All Mexicans there. I find one feller, my cousin or somethin', he say, one feller here last night talk pret' damn much. I buy drink for my cousin and I say, Yeah, an' who that feller, and w'at he talk too much about? An' den my cousin he say that feller call himself Vibora de Casabel, and he get ver' drunk, an' say 'I feex Black Sam. He no double-cross Vibora de Casabel no more.'"

"The devil!" exclaimed Shane, startled. If Jose was telling the truth, here was something to get one's teeth into. "You think—that Rattlesnake killed Black Sam?"

"Sure, meester," said Jose, emphatically. "Dat w'at he tink. Dat w'at I tink."

"That means, then," said Shane, "that—that Rattlesnake is mixed up in this smuggling business, eh?"

"Year, meester, I tink so," agreed Jose.

And it means that while the Rattlesnake is ostensibly—appears to be only an agent for Don Fernando, he's really using that business as a blind to carry stuff across the line from Mexico?

"Yeah, I tink so," said Jose, nodding. "Looks dat way."

A little silence fell. Then Shane was reminded that Jose had made another discovery. Reminded him of it, "Oh, yeah, papers," said Jose. He fished in an inside coat pocket, drew forth a small and much worn memorandum book. "You read Spanish, Meester?" he asked.

"Not very much, I don't," he said. "A little bit."

"Dees book, he show where by brudder get money, an' when he spend it, I not understand, Meester. Black Sam he pay Vibora de Casabel much money, get much money from Vibora de Casabel. Where all dat money come from, huh? You look." He offered the little book to Shane. "I find dat book where she been hide."

Shane consulted the soiled thumbled pages. But all that he could make of it were entries of amounts, running into the hundreds of dollars, received and paid out. There was a page of addresses. Some notes in Spanish, almost illegible. He handed the book back to Jose.

"Keep it carefully, Jose," he said. "It may come in useful." He thought a moment. "Now about this Casabel who talks too much, what kind of a name is that?"

"You know, Meester," said Jose. "I don't tink Vibora de Casabel come back here any more. Nossir. I tink he stay in Mexico. So I tink mebbe I feex him. You let me go Tijuana two-free days, eh?"

"Not only that, Jose," said Shane, rising. "Ramon and Pablo can run the ranch. I'll go with you. Because I want to see the Rattlesnake just as much as you do. Or more."

"Fine, Meester," said Jose. "Fine. We find him. An' when I ketch him, I make him talk, heetcha."

The sun shone less brightly at Rancho Soledad.

Don Timoteo sat and smoked, or strolled idly about, but his lips were clouded.

Mrs. Delane attended to her supervision of the house and performed a mother's part in the securing of the trousseau and the wedding arrangements. But her smile was forced, and her voice tired.

Lame Teddy limped about on crutches, avoided his grandfather and the other members of the family, and had no interest at all in his stamps.

Dick Truesdale companioned Cousin Teddy—but there was little talk and no laughter between them.

Rose was notably indifferent to the preparations for her marriage. She came and went restlessly, initiated nothing, and when consulted shrugged her shoulders and nodded and passed on.

Don Fernando called, his arms full of roses for his fiancée, only to be told that this was no place for a man, and would not be until after the wedding, at which message he smiled, and shrugged, passed a few words with Don Timoteo, and galloped away.

The thoughts in the heads of these folks would have made an interesting puzzle picture, or a mosaic, could they have been taken out of their heads and arranged on a table.

Don Fernando was satisfied—almost.

True, he was quite aware that Rose and Shane O'Hara had had trouble, and that that trouble had thrown her into his arms. But the result, and not the cause thereof, was what pleased him. He wanted Rose Delane, was determined to have her. Anything then that worked in his interests was good. Even an unsuccessful rival.

Don Fernando knew women well enough to understand that Rose had really cared a good deal for Shane, or her tiff with him would not have caused her to rush into his arms—Fernando's—receptive embrace. But that knowledge perturbed him not at all. He was pleased that the business was finished. For several years he had courted Rose—asked himself, had he courted the Rancho Soledad, including its mistress?—and never had there been a definite word exchanged between them.

That he loved her she knew—or believed—because he had often told her so. With words and eyes. But her way had been to laugh at him, sometimes kindly, sometimes rebellious, and to let him do his own guessing as to when he could get her. Wherefore, any incident which solved that situation was all to the good. There had always been the chance, he had known, that some day some man might appear on the scene and ruin the plans he had made. Just as had happened—almost—when Shane O'Hara dropped from the blue sky at the end of a parachute. Now he had but one thing to be thankful for—that Shane had not been lucky, and so had forced good fortune upon his rival.

Fernando did not disguise the extent of his fortune. He wanted the girl. Meant to have her. Rebellious or not. Willing or not. In fact, preferably somewhat unwillingly rather than too much the reverse. Fernando's Spanish-Mexican blood liked fire. And he would be able to control the girl, no matter how much of a wildcat she might be, once he got her into his own house—in Mexico.

But besides the girl, there was the Rancho Soledad—and this was never out of Fernando's mind. His Mexican properties were not of great value; gave him a moderate return, served several useful purposes. But the Rancho Soledad was a princely estate. Added to his Rancho La Espanola on the east, it would give him a water supply much needed.

Then there was La Paloma on the north—there was still the clouded title, despite Black Sam's death, which might fall into his hands—if Shane O'Hara were to throw up the sponge. All in all, Don Fernando stood to win the woman he wanted—not that he was a principality. Just before, he fully realized, Shane O'Hara hadn't watched his step.

Or, no, that was not quite the truth. Shane O'Hara's not watching his step had made it easier. That was all. It would have come about, one way or another, just the same. Don Fernando considered this one way or another. Almost wished that it had not been so easy. He'd have liked to tame the Rose of Soledad. The rose with thorns, yes—but pluckable, none the less.

Don Timoteo was troubled. He was troubled because his clear blue eyes had seen what had happened, although no words from any one had explained it. That was unnecessary. That Shane O'Hara loved Rose had

MANNERS OF THE MOMENT

When you have a lot of letters to answer, bury yourself in a good book.

Some etiquette experts claim that every letter that finds its way to your mail box, should be answered. We disagree. The only letters that you really ought to write are letters of complaint to the gas company, letters to park commissioner when he proposes to close a street, or to the park, and letters to your senator when he miffs things. These are letters that bring out your creative genius. And only creative letters are worth writing. We're down on bread and butter letters, answers to engraved invitations that says R. S. V. P., and duty letters. Whenever we get the stack of these that have to be tended to, we like to pile them up take a good long look at them, and then get a book and forget.

It's the only sensible way to keep from getting wrinkles between your brows. Though we believe our heart is pure, our strength is but the strength of one. And so is most people's, Mr. Galusha.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

FROM TWINS TO QUINS.

I—TWINS.

One day while I was coming back from a trip to Europe I met a man about 33 years of age, and he told me about his travels in Germany. I enjoyed our chat very much, and on later days of the voyage we often had talks together. I found he was a professor of chemistry at an American university, and I also learned he had a twin brother.

This has been taken as a general average.

Sometimes the twins are a boy and a girl, and they are no more alike (except for age) than the average brother and sister. In other cases twin brothers or twin sisters differ as much in looks and actions as ordinary brothers or sisters. Identical twins, however, are alike in color of eyes, hair and skin, in the shape of hands and feet. Even the finger prints are very much alike, though I do not know of any case where an expert could not find some little difference.

Once in a great while, twins are joined together, as shoulder to shoulder and hip to hip. When this happens, it is a very sad thing, but a few pairs of joined twins have found fame and money in their ill-fortune. An early record of a pair of Biddenden Maids who lived at Biddenden, England, nine and a half centuries ago. They were named Mary and Eliza Chulkhurst. Though they were joined together, and in time they were able to buy a plantation in North Carolina.

The Siamese twins lived to the age of 62. Chang died first, but Eng's death followed on a few hours later. (For general interest section of your scrapbook.)
